

RASHMI NARZARY

Sahitya Akademi Awardee for Children's literature (English) in 2016 for her book "His Share of Sky", RASHMI NARZARY is an author, a columnist and an independent editor having worked on editing projects with the UNICEF, Assam, besides others. As a poet, she carved a niche for herself in the International Library of Poetry. She is also a translator, and had translated, among other works, the Sahitya Akademi Award winning story 'Shrinkhol', written by the eminent and award winning film maker, Padmashree late Dr. Bhabendra Nath Saikia. It was an ebook project by Nirvana Sutra and the work, by the name of 'The Chain and Other Stories' consisted of translating quite a few of the master story teller's works from Assamese to English. Despite an academic background in Economics and then Human Resource Management from Symbiosis Institute, writing continued to remain her passion. Thus was published WINGS, her first book, in the year 2005, which is a collection of short stories. Looking Beyond....stories of hope (2006) --- is her second book.

His Share of Sky (2012) is her third book. Narzary also paints, in oils and water colour.

Mosaic, her upcoming book of a collection of 20 short stories, is set for a September release in Mumbai.

A very home loving person, she stays in Guwahati with her husband Hemanta Narzary, a senior IAS officer and presently Principal Secretary to the Govt of Assam, their daughter Sandhya, a final semester MBBS student and son Jairaj who is in the Xth. standard and two adorable dogs !
